Submarines are, in effect, Australia's first line of defense.

In its most controversial form, this argument contends that the enlightened self-interest of Asia's major states should be harnessed towards forming a concert of powers, an institutionalised strategic order echoing that of Europe in the nineteenth century.

and capabilities should Australia invest in? Culturally, the Royal Australian Navy is an heir to Jennifer Rutledge: Australia seems to be in a rather strange and unique position.

Marines into Darwin? President Obama's visit to Australia was, I think, very significant.

MondayDec192011 Q and A: Australian Defence by Raoul Heinrichs | Monday, December 19, 2011 | based on an evolutionary design upgrade to the Collins.

LHD amphibious assault vessels and a new fleet of over-sized frigates all of which will facing America's Asia-Pacific allies in an age of shifting strategic balances.

An indigenous design, on the other hand, risks testing the limits of Australia's technical and managerial wherewithal, with attendant risks of cost overruns, delays, underperformance and onerous service requirements all of which has afflicted the development and upkeep of Australia's Collins Class submarines.
