Submarines also push up the scale of an enemy force necessitating convoys, for example which can be more readily interdicted by Australia's land-based airpower.

Such an alliance seems to be aimed at only one nation, China.

Bizarrely, at a time when Chinese submarine warfare and anti-ship missiles are improving at a

Taken together, the message was clear: the United States would set and enforce the rules in Asia, and other powers notably China would be expected to adhere to them.

Deputy Editor of Pnyx.

Canberra would, in my view, be far better served by emulating key aspects of China's own sea-denial strategy, which blurs strategically defensive objectives with an offensive war-fighting doctrine to clear rival navies out of designated areas.

Another option might be to explore a demonstrated off-the-shelf system, offsetting any performance deficiencies with a greater quantity probably 18 to 22 boats instead of 12.

First, they are not presently available, and there are few signs that Washington or London would be prepared to transfer their most cutting edge nuclear propulsion and defence technology to any country, even a close ally like Australia.

regional partners now face a quandary: how to navigate between their economic interests, increasingly aligned with Beijing, and their strategic instincts, which pull them towards Washington.

British nuclear submarine purchases or leases.
